

Rep. David Dreyer
District 59

Biography

David was elected as the state representative for House District 59 in 2016.

David was born in Ringgold, Georgia, but David's family moved to Roswell, where David started middle school. David graduated from Georgia State University, where he was involved in various student groups, including founding Young Democrats and working with an environmental and homeless advocacy group. David received the student leadership award from his graduating class.

After attending Georgia State University, David graduated from Emory University School of Law, where he remained committed to public service, serving as student body president and working on several campaigns. One focus of David's studies was constitutional law and voter protection, areas that remain in the forefront of his career.

David was admitted to the State Bar of Georgia in 2004, and David is a civil rights and business litigation attorney with Dreyer Sterling, representing individuals and companies in courts throughout Georgia.

David has two boys, Henry and Leo. David and his family place a strong value on community service and enjoy volunteering and helping neighbors.
